DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

Claim I is objected to because of the following informalities: the applicant is disclosing digit tip pads that are configured to rotate when they are in contact with an object. New figures (figures 5a and 5b) disclose only a hinge that move the tip pads back and forward instead of rotating. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Rovetta et al US Patent 4,351,553.

Rovetta et al discloses a grip device comprising at least two opposable digits, digit pads (32) configured to “rotatably” contact an object when the tip pad comes in contact with an object (see Figure 1).

Claims 1 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Mimura US Patent 5,062,673.

Mimura discloses an artificial hand capable of being attached to a patient hand. Mimura discloses a drive linkage (see Figure 3, 34, 33, 32, 41, 57, 55, etc.) configured to drive two opposable digits (1, 2 & 3), a drive motor (26, 27, 28, see Fig. 1) coupled to a belt (55), having a radial motor axis configured to be mounted normal to a radial axis of a person's arm and a mechanical wrist member (see Figures 1 & 4).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Mimura US Patent 5,062,673.

Mimura discloses the invention substantially as claimed. However, Mimura does not disclose a high torque to inertia motor with heavy-duty graphite/copper composite brushes.

At the time the invention was made, it would have been an obvious matter of design choice to a person of ordinary skill in the art to have a high torque motor with heavy-duty graphite/copper composite brushes because Applicant has not disclosed that the heavy-duty graphite/copper composite brushes provides an advantage, is used for a particular purpose, or solves a stated problem. One of ordinary skill in the art, furthermore, would have expected Applicant's invention to perform equally well with the regular motor brushes of the Mimura reference because both hands will perform the same desire task (e.g. holding objects).

Therefore, it would have been an obvious matter of design choice to modify the Mimura reference to obtain the invention as specified in claim 5.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claim 6 is allowed.
